

Social Risk and Resettlement Management Training Course

13–14 December 2016. Nairobi, Kenya.

This course is aimed at those involved in infrastructure development and natural resource management, in particular social performance specialists, risk managers, project managers, government and NGOs.

Description

Sessions will use an interactive approach to facilitate a practical learning experience based on direct exchanges between course participants and trainers. The course will draw heavily on Intersocial's and AECOM's practical experience planning and implementing projects with a particular focus on case studies from East Africa. Participants will be provided with practical tools and methodologies that can be directly applied on projects.

Participation Fee: US$ 680

Includes course participation, a copy of the book Land Access and Resettlement: A Guide to Best Practice, course materials, refreshments and lunch. Participants are required to organise their own travel and accommodation. A 50% discount will be offered to the first five applicants from NGOs and research institutions.

Registration

Register at www.intersocialconsulting.com or email training@intersocialconsulting.com. Deadline for registration: 18 November 2016, or earlier if fully booked. Venue details and timetable will be provided to registered participants.

Key Modules

- Understanding Social Risks
- Tools for Social Performance Management throughout the Project Life-cycle
- Identifying, Understanding and Minimizing Land Access and Resettlement Impacts
- Managing Resettlement from Planning to Implementation
- Links Between RAP and ESIA: An Integrated Approach to Social Risk Management
- Key Implementation Challenges

Trainers

Eddie Smyth is a Director of Intersocial Consulting with over 20 years' experience in planning, implementing and reviewing resettlement projects to international standards. He is a co-Author of Land Access and Resettlement, A Guide to Best Practice.

Bhavin Vyas is Technical Director of AECOM's Social Development Team. He has over 15 years' professional experience, providing expertise to clients across Social Risk Management services such as social due diligence, impact assessment, resettlement planning, stakeholder engagement and strategic social investment.